UCF's Global Perspectives and International Initiatives in partnership with the American University in Cairo's School of Global Affairs and Public Policy is launching an ongoing series discussing the future of U.S.-Arab relations in a changing world with emerging new security threats and global challenges.

The series kicks-off with Lieutenant General Herbert Raymond McMaster, former United States National Security Advisor; and Ambassador Nabil Fahmy, former Egyptian Foreign Minister. In this session, "What the Future Holds: A Discussion on US-Arab Relations," the speakers provide their assessment of the changing relationship between the U.S. and the Arab world. They will highlight how the parameters of Middle East affairs have changed sharply in recent years and how policies must adjust accordingly.

This event is open for all UCF and AUC students, our colleagues at both institutions, esteemed partners, and the broader community.
